

IMAX NEWS

A Real Life Journey To The Titanic

Thursday, April 12 by Julie Brown

Like Tweet 0 +1 0

Meet Masayo Goto. On the 9th July, 2005, Masayo embarked on an underwater adventure, 3.8 kilometres deep to the shipwreck of the Titanic.

Starting at Newfoundland on the east coast of Canada, boarding the Russian ship Academic Kildish (featured in James Cameron's film Titanic) Masayo was given an intensive briefing on the experiences to be expected as a passenger of the 7.8 meter submersible that would take her to the bottom of the ocean and to the Titanic shipwreck. A long, dark, two hour journey to the bottom of the Atlantic ocean, and the submersible had reached the Titanic. Then a six hour tour around the actual shipwreck allowed for one memorable experience!

ABOUT THIS BLOG
Want to keep up-to-date with what's showing on the Big Screen? Look no further! The IMAX blog will keep you up to date with IMAX movies and events - stay tuned for trailers, behind the scenes videos and interviews on all things IMAX.

FOLLOW IMAX ON

BECOME A FAN ON

WATCH IMAX ON

RSS FEED
 SUBSCRIBE TO THE IMAX BLOG
Click this link to view Blog as XML
Or add this feed to your favourite online reader
 Add to Google Add to MSN
 Add to My Yahoo Add to Bloglines
 Add to Newsgator

SEARCH THIS BLOG